Trojan TV: Community Episode

[main anchors]

[Himani] - Welcome to Trojan TV. I'm your anchor, Himani Laroia.

[Eva] - And I'm Eva Jordan.

[Eva] - Coming up tonight we have a feature on a local nonprofit called the "I'm Glad You Stayed" Project. This mental health awareness and suicide prevention organization was started by high school senior, Abbey Schley, after the death of her close friend last year.

[Himani] - Later, we have a bigger story about how small businesses are still dealing with Covid losses, but are beginning to bounce back after facing economic hardships. John Lieu, a local business owner, tells us about his experience opening a whole new restaurant during COVID-19 and how he's achieved success, despite his uncertain beginnings.

[transition to main segments]

[Eva] Suicide is the second leading cause of death in teens aged 12-19, according to the CDC, and there was a 60% increase in cases between 2007 and 2018. This issue was devastating the country far before the pandemic. COVID-19 and its effects increased feelings of isolation and made it hard for people to get help outside their homes.

[Himani] - Abbey Schley started the "I'm Glad You Stayed" Project after losing a close friend of hers to suicide. It is now a federally-recognized non-profit and is continuing to grow. Through social media, pamphlets, and t-shirts, she is spreading awareness about teenage mental health and the long-lasting impacts suicide can have on a community. Here's Abbey now.

[insert interview]

[transition to main anchors]

[Himani] - Thank you so much Abbey. You are not only brave, but you are an inspiration to this community and an advocate for teenagers everywhere.

[transition music]

[Eva] - Racism as well as financial problems forced many businesses to close or reduce their hours, but as infection rates continue to go down, many new small businesses are deciding to take the plunge.

[Himani] - Today we're interviewing John Lieu, a local Asian American business owner. He gives us a refreshing account of his experience opening his restaurant, Ramen Belly, during COVID-19 and how the restaurant is doing.

[display interview]

[Himani] - Keeping a small business was hard during the pandemic, even more so for Asian Americans, but we're glad to hear that Lieu's business has continued to thrive despite what could have gone wrong.

[Eva] - COVID-19 is far from over, but there is a light at the end of the tunnel. You can support the "I'm Glad You Stayed" Project by following them on social media and spreading this message: 'when given the choice to stay or to go, choose stay.'

[Himani] - This is Trojan TV reminding us that we're all in this together.

Thank you for watching and see you next time on Trojan TV!
